DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1 and 2 are pending and have been examined.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. It is noted that no Information Disclosure Statement has been filed on this application.

Claim Objections

3. Claims 1 and 2 are objected to because of the following informalities: IPSEC, CD-ROM, DVD-ROM, LAN must be spelled out. Appropriate correction is required.
4. Claim 2 is objected to because of the following informalities: quotations must be removed. Appropriate correction is required.
5. Claim 2 is further objected to because of the following informalities: it does not conform with MPEP 608.01(m). "Each claim begins with a capital letter and ends with a period. Periods may not be used elsewhere in the claims except for abbreviations. See Fressola v. Manbeck, 36 USPQ2d 1211 (D.D.C. 1995)". Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

6. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.
7. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice.

8. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential structural cooperative relationships of elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the necessary structural connections. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted structural cooperative relationships are: a computer readable medium and the instructions embedded therein.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

9. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

10. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The claim language is directed to a system, but there are no hardware elements claimed, and according to the specification, the invention is a disc that contains code and when it is executed by a computer performs a function. However, it is not claimed properly as software since it is not claimed that it is on a computer readable medium.

11. To expedite a complete examination of the application, the claims rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 (non-statutory) above are further rejected as set forth below in anticipation of applicant amending these claims to place them within the four statutory categories of invention

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

12. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

13. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Knopper (NPL "Building a self-contained auto-configuring Linux system on an iso9660 filesystem").

Regarding claim 1, Knopper teaches the first successful integration of Linux, IPSEC (secure Internet-Protocol), Kerberos, and Wireless-LAN technologies in a manner capable of operating a full-featured InterNet server capable of being run entirely from read-only media such as CD- ROM or DVD-ROM, primarily serving as either a laptop workstation, or security firewall between Wireless-LAN laptop workstations and the global InterNet (col. 3, platform and applications).

Regarding claim 2, Knopper teaches a system in which a pre-built generic prototype package, as described above, can be rapidly and nearly-automatically be modified by scripts which would give the prototypes "unique network identity and personalization", eliminating the need for on-site configuration. Each CDROM or DVD-ROM generated by this system will be a unique and "individualized" node in a preconfigured network, yet easily adapted to interacting with the global InterNet (col. 6, pars. 1-4, configure network cards).
